Armas Is President Of Junta

Guatemala, July 9 (AP)—Col. Carlos Castillo Armas finally rode the top of the political heap in Guatemala today. The government announced the rebel chief was elected president of a new three-man junta—the fifth government turnover in less than two weeks.

Col. Elfezo Monzon, temporary chief of the five-man junta in charge since last Friday, remained on the new pared-down ruling body.

But the reins were clearly in Castillo's hands. The third member of the top group—Maj. Enrique Oliva—was defense minister in the previous government, which the rebel leader set up at Chiquimula after his army overthrew the government.

Guatemalan exiles invaded their homeland from neighboring Honduras on June 18.

Effective at Once
A government decree last night said Castillo's election was effective immediately. The announcement said the five members of the previous junta voted unanimously to make him head of state at a meeting Wednesday night.

The other two members of the previous group—Lt. Col. Mauricio Dubois and Jose Luis Ruiz—resigned. In a formal statement they said a smaller group would make governing decisions. It was speculated that the group would make diplomatic assignments, one likely in Washington.

Castillo's emergence as chief of Guatemala's newest anti-Red regime had been expected for several days. The move finally gave the colonel's liberation army a clear-cut victory.

Followers Dissatisfied
Most of his followers were only dissatisfied with the promise arrangement he made with Monzon at a peace conference last week in El Salvador. The conference set up a five-man junta which Monzon headed as temporary chief.

It was agreed that a permanent election would be held by July 17. Meanwhile the government moved fast to consolidate its power, tightening the guard over foreign embassies yesterday to prevent escape of political enemies who have taken refuge behind the new regime.

While figures were not available, it was estimated 900 persons had sought asylum in the diplomatic compounds.

Cement Plant Reopens
Catskill, July 9 (AP)—The plant Cement Co. reopened its unit near here today following a union vote ending an eight-week-old strike. Alpha employees proved a new contract last night calling for a pay increase of five cents an hour and the company immediately called a new plant for today's reopening.

The plant is the last of five in the Hudson valley operated by the same company. Pre-strike wages at the Hudson valley plants ran from $1.50 to $2 an hour.

Two Cars Damaged
Two cars were reported damaged in a collision at Broadway and Van Deusen street last night. A report at 10:47 a. m. said cars driven by Glen A. is, 19, of 44 Tremper avenue, and George H. Brockelmann, 26, Catskill, were both headed north on Broadway, when they collided. The Otis car was damaged on the rear and the other the right door and body panel.

Travel on Three Bridges Increases
June travel over the three Hudson river bridges under control of the New York State Bridge Authority was 6.85 per cent above that of June, 1953, authority reported today.

Last month's total was 667,245 against 624,331 a year ago for a gain of 42,914 vehicles. The Rip Van Winkle bridge carried 152,280 against 149,081, a gain of 3,199 vehicles or 2.15 per cent; the Mid-Hudson total was 339,093 against 318,230, for 20,863 or 6.56 per cent gain; the Bear Mountain total was 175,819 and 157,080, for a gain of 18,739 vehicles or 11.93 per cent.

The Kingston Rhinecliff ferry ferried 9,173 vehicles against 85 for a gain of 788, but with loss of 2,448 and 2,687 showed 39 loss in pedestrian travel.

Specified Are Foundation for Tank and All Related Equipment

Bids for work in conjunction with erection of a 600,000-gallon tank in the Pearl street area of the city will be opened August 6, the water board decided at its meeting last night.

The board voted to advertise for bids for erecting the steel standpipe foundation, a booster station, all piping, motors, pumps and electrical equipment. The piping will include a line of about 6,000 feet of 16-inch pipe from Washington avenue to the pumping station and standpipe.

The total bond issue earmarked for the project is $240,000 and a contract for the tank has been let to the Chicago Bridge & Iron Co., which is expected to start work next month.

Pre-Span Work Nears Completion, Spokesman Says
Super-Structure Bids Are to Be Opened July 26 —Cement Supply Available

Ground is cleared in preparation to start work on the sub-structure of the Kingston-Rhinebeck bridge and work on both approaches is 75 to 80 per cent completed, a spokesman for the New York State Bridge Authority said today.

Land is cleared to the river from the end of the approach road in the area where 22 ground piers will be built and work is expected to start soon on actual building of the piers.

To Open Bids
Merritt-Chapman & Scott, of New York is the contractor for the sub-structure. Bids are to be opened for the super-structure in Albany July 26 at 2 p. m.

The Grandview Construction Corp., of Westchester county is contractor for work on the eastern approach and Philip Tottelny Inc., of Newburgh, is doing the work on the west side approach.

It is expected that cement will be available from the various area plants by the time the contractor is ready to make first pourings for the land piers on this side of the river.

At the present rate of progress work on both bridge approaches should be completed next month.

Legal Fight Is To Open on Slain Thorne's Estate
Chicago, July 9 (AP)—The first round in the expected legal fight for Montgomery Ward Thorne's two million dollar fortune opened today as coroner's officials investigated a pathologist's report hinting he was slain.

Dr. Harry Leon, in a report yesterday, said the 20-year-old man order he died violently of alcohol and drug poisons, and that someone else probably injected the drugs into his veins.

Thorne died "by undue means," Dr. Leon said in his report to Coroner Walter E. McCarron. "This definitely was not a natural death," he said.

"There is definitely something wrong in this case," McCarron said. "It appears from the physician's report that a second party, expert with the needle, may have administered drugs into the veins of Thorne before he died."

Young Thorne was found dead in his one-room apartment near Chicago's North Side Gold Coast on June 19. The coroner's office has started a search for all persons who have seen him between 1 a. m. and 5 a. m. Probate Judge Charles G. Seidel of Kane county was summoned to Chicago to preside over today's hearing on a petition filed by the Regens' lawyer. The hearing will concern only the youth's right to the fortune left by his father Gordon C. Thorne who died in 1938.

Man Is Rescued
Chicago, July 9 (AP)—Police and firemen broke a hole in a 16-foot chimney early today to rescue a 21-year-old man who told them he had been stripped of his clothing, beaten and robbed by four Negroes. The victim, Joseph Laore, 21, apparently had been carried to the roof of the one-story Chicago Yacht Club building at the foot of Monroe street on Lake Michigan and dropped feet first into the chimney. The chimney projects about four feet above the roof. In critical condition, Laore was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, given sedation and put in an oxygen tent.

To Lower Gas Price
New York, July 9 (AP)—Soco-Vacuum Oil Co. says, effective today, it is reducing the wholesale price of its regular and premium gasoline in 11 eastern states and the District of Columbia by 1/2 a cent to one cent a gallon.

Ely Pledges Hard Fight For Hanoi

Indochina Commander Denies Capital Is to Be Abandoned to Vietnamh

Hanoi, Indochina, July 9 (AP)—France's newest commander in Indochina, Gen. Paul Ely, pledged last night to make an all-out stand for threatened Hanoi. He denied growing rumors that the north Indochina capital would be abandoned to the Communist-led Vietnamh.

Observers here recalled that the French high command made a similar vow to defend the entire Red river delta only a month before it abandoned the southern third of the key area to the rebels.

Ely told newsmen his order pulling French Union troops out of the southern region last week had been issued to shore up the defenses around Hanoi. He said he has also ordered all-out defense of the port of Haiphong and the vital 65-mile supply route linking it with Hanoi.

To Reach Decision
The commander predicted that a decision whether there would be continued war or cease-fire in Indochina would be reached by July 20. This is the date French Premier Pierre Mendes-France set as his deadline to achieve a truce or resign.

The Vietnamh meanwhile have massed three divisions southwest of Hanoi. Another three are grouped along the northern border of the delta.

If the rebels strike, it is believed they will hit east of Hanoi in a move to cut the line to Haiphong with a pincer from the north and south and thus isolate the north Viet Nam capital.

Military observers speculated that if the Vietnamh managed to cut the supply line from Haiphong, Hanoi could not hold out for more than a few weeks.

Local Talks Continue
Meanwhile, local talks continued between French-Vietnamese and rebel military representatives on technical details of a possible cease-fire. The two sides held their fifth closed-door sessions yesterday at Trung Gia, 25 miles north of Hanoi.

There was no indication they had reached agreement on any points. The rebels stepped up their war of nerves, flooding Hanoi with propaganda leaflets claiming the Vietnamh would launch an all-out attack on the city next weekend.

Other leaflets boasted that rebel leader Ho Chi Minh would enter the city July 14, the day the French commemorate the fall of the Bastille in 1789.

The leaflets, written in Vietnamese, increased the anxiety of Hanoi's native population. Many already have sold their homes and belongings at low prices and headed for Haiphong.

The city's Chinese colony has been advised by its leaders to quit Hanoi within the next few days.

Ferguson Says Errors Should Not Be Ignored

Coutant Will Be Local Competitor In State Road-e-o

New York Winner to Be Chosen Sunday at Dietz Stadium; 41 Entered

CHARLES COUTANT
Charles Coutant, winner of the Teen-Age Road-e-o local eliminations sponsored by the Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce, will compete with 40 other contestants from all over the state in the automobile driving contest at the Dietz Stadium here on Sunday, July 11.

Competition will begin at 10 a. m., and spectators are welcome. There will be no admission charge.

The field course, although having no hazards, will be a test of skillful driving.

A spokesman for the Junior Chamber of Commerce suggested today, "Those that feel they are skilled in driving should make a point to witness the course and see our teen-agers, who are among the best drivers of the state."

To Hold Banquet
Climaxing the day's events will be the awards banquet to be held at 7 p. m., at the George Washington School. The three top state winners will be announced. Prizes to be awarded at that time include a free trip to the national finals in Washington, D. C., plaques and other valuable prizes.

Principal speaker for the banquet will be Thomas Ryan, state director of safety.

Senator Fears We May Fall Into Global Trap of Reds
Washington, July 9 (AP)—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) said today it would be "a senseless ostrich attitude" to ignore what he called foreign policy mistakes of the Truman administration.

"Unless we do keep those errors firmly in mind," the chairman of the GOP policy committee said, "we are apt to fall into the same global trap—so cleverly baited by Communists who talk peaceful coexistence, but who give no factual evidence of good faith."

Ferguson, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in a statement he felt compelled to comment on Democratic complaints concerning Republican criticism of the Asian policies of former President Truman and his secretary of state, Dean Acheson.

In Wake of Speech
Ferguson's comment came in the wake of a Senate speech yesterday in which Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) gave this as a summary of current GOP foreign policy: "Speak loudly and carry a feather duster."

Mansfield accused the administration of seeking to run foreign affairs on a "diplomacy of bluster and retreat," but Sen. Cooper (R-Ky.) challenged him to show "just what the failure is" in the government's Asian diplomatic moves, or to say what a Democratic administration would have handled differently.

Mansfield referred to Secretary of State Dulles' unsuccessful missions to London and Paris to line up support for an anti-Communist alliance in southeast Asia, and he declared:

"We can do nothing or worse than nothing if we cling to the illusion that . . . eleven-hour flights to foreign capitals are a substitute for carefully cultivated, carefully maintained cooperation with friendly nations; that strong words, even massive ones, equate with a strong policy—that they take the place of genuine strength and conviction."

Could Have Moved
Cooper, a former delegate to the United Nations, said the administration could have moved to intervene in Indochina, but that the Democrats were against that, or it could have abandoned Indochina to Communist conquest and has not done so.

The third possibility, he said, was to "try to build up sources of strength to try to prevent future aggression." That is what the administration has done, Cooper added.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP Senate leader, told Mansfield foreign policy is a matter on which public figures "constantly rise above narrow partisanship," and he added: "I hope it will not become a partisan issue."

Mansfield replied that the Democrats do not "like to be kicked around or knifed in the back." He said the Democrats had tried to cooperate but had been faced with "bickering and back biting."

Plane on Ashokan Eludes Police of New York Board
Check Is Being Made to Learn Identity; Termed Violation on 2 Counts

An unidentified hydroplane swooped down on the Ashokan reservoir last Monday morning but before BWS police could reach the scene in a police launch the plane took off and disappeared. Later that afternoon the plane returned and was also seen in the vicinity at a later time, police at the Ashokan station reported.

The plane was identified tentatively as a Piper Cub and was reported to have been an orange-yellow with green pontoons. Several fishermen in the vicinity of Glenford where the plane landed, observed the ship and reported it to the BWS police.

Plane Eludes Police
When the police launch reached a point about 500 feet from the plane, police at Ashokan report, the ship took off in such a manner that it was impossible to secure the license number.

Landing a plane on the Ashokan reservoir is not only a violation of the New York city regulations governing the reservoir, but is also a security violation. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

No Contests Seen At GOP Session
Wharton, Wicks, Wilson and Craft Are Top Men on Ticket

Delegates to the Ulster county-union Republican convention will meet Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the municipal auditorium on Broadway to recommend candidates to be voted at the fall primary.

Since there is a short county ticket and no town or ward offices to be voted this fall, except in the case of vacancies, interest in the political situation has been light.

Congressman J. Ernest Wharton has already been endorsed by the congressional convention and Senator Arthur H. Wicks has been endorsed by Republican groups in various parts of his district. It is expected the delegates Saturday will give unofficial endorsement to both these candidates as well as to Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson.

County Ticket
On the county ticket Lawrence D. Craft of Ellenville, presently supervisor of the town of Wawarsing, is the probable candidate for county clerk to succeed Harry D. Sutton whose term expires this year. The only other county office to be filled is that of coroner. Francis J. McCordie of Kingston, who was elected to fill out the unexpired term of (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

President 'Opposed'
The President told newsmen he is "completely and unalterably opposed" to admitting the Peiping regime, but he said the United States should go slow on deciding whether to quit the UN as a result. Eisenhower expressed the view that it was unlikely the other UN members would override the wishes of the United States in this matter and Dulles predicted Communist China would not be seated.

A fresh statement of the administration's attitude was given Congress today by Asst. Secretary of State Thruston B. Morton, in opposing a resolution calling on the government "to re-examine its policy regarding the UN" if Peiping is admitted.

Letter to Chairman
Morton wrote Chairman Chip-herfield (R-Ill.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee that if Red China joined the UN or any of its 10 specialized agencies, "it is axiomatic that we would re-examine our policy regarding the organization concerned, in the light of the circumstances then existing."

"However," the assistant secretary said, "we would not think that the policy we have in mind would be promoted by any congressional action which seemed to take it for granted that the Chinese Communist regime would in fact be seated in the various organs of the United Nations."

Rep. Bentley (R-Mich.), author of the proposed resolution, said in making Morton's letter public that he thought his plan might provide a "compromise" between administration reluctance to being committed in advance and some congressional desire to go on record ahead of the next General Assembly meeting Sept. 21.

"We would have served notice that a change could be expected if the Red Chinese come in," Bentley said, "and any nation (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Get Tough, Youth Advises, To Overcome Delinquency
(Everybody is talking about juvenile delinquency, but what can be done about it? Here is a report on a unique experiment by a judge in Louisville, Ky., who is getting answers from a quarter completely ignored in many cities.)

Louisville, Ky., July 9 (AP)—A Louisville judge has turned to an "overlooked source" in the fight against juvenile delinquency—youth itself.

And the judge's nine young consultants have advised him to "get tough," a surprising deviation from the widely held adult view that adolescent law-breaking is the result of factors the young do not control.

The youngsters recommend that juvenile court adopt a stern policy to instill in those brought before it "the fear of the court they should have"; that offenders be put to work to pay for damages; and that parents "quit coddling kids."

The advice came after the local youth advisory committee began sitting in on juvenile court sessions, talking with authorities and visiting institutions. The seven boys and two girls were named by Juvenile Judge Louis H. Jull, who commented:

"It occurs to me that every voice on the subject of juvenile delinquency is an adult voice. It may be that most, if not all, adults think of youth as they wish they were, rather than as (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Attitude Is In Prospect To Wait, See

Senator Says Backing Expected From Both Sides on Amendment About Red China
Washington, July 9 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee appeared set to stamp approval today on a wait-and-see plan for dealing with the prospect of Red China's seating in the United Nations.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.), author of the toned-down proposal, forecast a favorable verdict in advance of a formal vote scheduled behind closed doors, and in this he was joined by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), acting committee chairman.

Knowland, the Senate GOP leader, said in an interview he expects "tremendous" support from both Republicans and Democrats for his amendment, apparently revised at administration urging from a stiffer version.

Terms of Amendment
The Knowland amendment would write into the pending 3 1/2 billion dollar foreign aid bill: 1. Another Congressional statement in opposition to admitting Communist China to the UN.

2. A request to President Eisenhower — If Red China is seated in either the Security or the Assembly — for a statement to Congress on the implications to U. S. foreign policy of the action "together with any recommendations" the President may have.

The amendment's actual wording is a far cry from Knowland's original demand that America promptly withdraw from the UN if Red China came in, with this policy to be set by Congress before the vote. It conforms more to Eisenhower's view, as he expressed it Wednesday, and endorsed by Secretary of State Dulles yesterday.

President 'Opposed'
The President told newsmen he is "completely and unalterably opposed" to admitting the Peiping regime, but he said the United States should go slow on deciding whether to quit the UN as a result. Eisenhower expressed the view that it was unlikely the other UN members would override the wishes of the United States in this matter and Dulles predicted Communist China would not be seated.

Stang Commends Police on Traffic

Mayor Frederick H. Stang has added his commendation of Police Chief Raymond VanBuren and the local police department, to that of the Common Council, for the handling of holiday traffic in the city.

The mayor said the department had operated efficiently in handling the heavy flow of traffic through the city, and Tuesday night, on recommendation of Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, the aldermen adopted a resolution authorizing City Clerk Bernhard S. Kramer to forward the following letter to the department:

July 8, 1954
Kingston Police Department
Kingston, New York.
Gentlemen:

At a regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of Kingston, New York, held July 6th, 1954, President Joseph Kelly of said Council called that body's attention to the excellent work done by the local police department in handling of traffic over the July 4th weekend in the City of Kingston.

Alderman Abram D. Relyea also remarked about the efficient manner in which the traffic was directed through the city. He thereupon offered a resolution commending the Kingston Police Department for the efficient manner in which traffic was handled over the city streets during the July 4th weekend.

Said resolution was seconded by Alderman Edwin Radel, and the vote taken thereon was unanimous.

Very truly yours,
BERNHARDT S. KRAMER
City Clerk

One man was observed on the pontoons and fishermen in the vicinity reported the man had apparently been fishing. The fact that the plane took off on approach of the police launch and later returned to the scene, indicated it was in no trouble and had not made an emergency landing, police said.

A check of various hydroplane landings is being made by the police.

Pressman Exhibit To Open July 10

Woodstock, July 8—A permanent gallery to exhibit the paintings of Meichel Pressman will be launched with the opening of the show, scheduled to take place Saturday, July 10, at 3 p. m. at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Pressman, Neher street, this village.

Pressman, an original primitive painter started to paint at the age of 84. His career as an artist began quite accidentally in 1948 when he found a box of crayons in his home and just to pass the time made a small drawing. The drawings gave way to watercolors and a new octogenarian of importance soon received attention from the art world.

His first one-man show took place in March 1949, only eight months after he started to paint. The critics and the public were enthusiastic about the jewel-like colors and his naive, yet mature productions.

In 1950 Pressman won a certificate of merit at the Hobby Show, held at the Museum of Natural History. During the same year, one of his pieces, The Psalms of David was on exhibit at the American Watercolor Society annual show. There followed other one-man shows.

Meichel Pressman's work was represented in several shows at the Woodstock Gallery. Pressman died at the age of 87. The Woodstock Art Gallery tendered a memorial show to him in 1951.

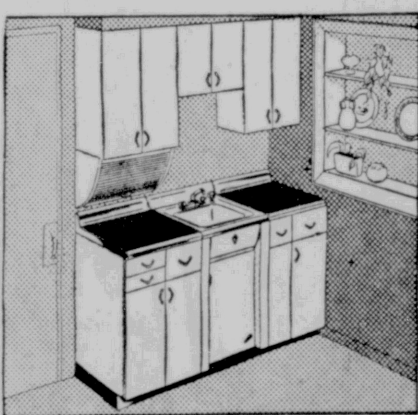

What made Pressman's debut especially touching and inspiring was the fact that when he picked up the box of crayons, his interest in life was at its lowest ebb. Forcibly retired owing to a heart attack at the age of 63, and victim of a gangrene infection at 78, which caused the amputation of his leg, he had become accustomed year after year to a routine of pointless, tedious dragging days. He had become moody and depressed and looked forward only to each day's end. But with the awakening of his long dormant and totally unsuspected painting talent, he was once again in high spirits and looked forward, not to the end but to the beginning of each day. Pressman's paintings are based on Biblical stories and childhood recollections of the small Austrian village where he was born. The gay colors and naive charm of his designs are reminiscent of Pennsylvania Dutch, Byzantine and European folk art.

The collection of the artists work is not for sale. The exhibition is free to the public.

GUATEMALAN TRIUMPH

The crushing of Communist and pro-Communist government elements in Guatemala represents a smashing triumph for freedom in the Western Hemisphere.

The 12-day revolution which brought about this result was a weird series of maneuvers in an area of the globe notorious for strange wars and stranger politics.

For days, the rebel forces led by Colonel Carlos Castillo Armas seemed to be fighting a shadow action. Information was scanty, and outsiders concluded after a while that the revolt probably would collapse.

Later it was realized there had been more fighting than could be reported. And when Colonel Castillo's small air force swung into fuller action and was unopposed, the war's complexion changed. Important towns fell to the rebels, and they marched toward the capital of Guatemala City.

Suddenly, the impact of this gathering storm was felt at the palace. The pro-Red regime of President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman resigned, and was replaced by a military junta under Colonel Carlos Enrique Diaz.

Distant observers were skeptical of the move, fearing a trick by Arbenz. Even the junta's outlawing of the Communist Party failed to convince. Colonel Costello said the war would go on until the government met rebel demands for the complete crushing of the country's Communist elements.

There followed another palace coup, with another junta headed by tough Colonel Elfejo J. Monzon moving in to replace Colonel Diaz. This time the Reds were really given the axe. The action satisfied rebel leaders. And under the auspices of the Organization of American States, a cease-fire was arranged.

Thus, though the rebels never put a ground force in the capital and never took more than a fair portion of the country, their persistence, their tiny but damaging air force, and the moral backing given anti-Communist elements by the United States produced the dramatic ouster of the Reds and their sympathizers.

How much material assistance, how much strategic guidance this country might have given the rebels may not be known for some time. Indications are it was not much.

What did count heavily was the presence of American Ambassador John Peurifoy, symbol of the great power to the north. Quietly but forcefully, he lent moral strength to the men who were emboldened to overturn Arbenz and clean out the Communists.

The Communist rose spot in the Western Hemisphere was rubbed out while it was still small. That it could happen as it did must be set down as a minor miracle. But it did occur, and it spells victory. Happily, we were not afraid to use at least some of our weight quickly and effectively.

The need for unflinching vigilance close to home is an obvious lesson from Guatemala. A bigger one may be this: America must use its moral and material power speedily, in the early stages of trouble, if it would really wipe out or check the Communist cancers that arise to infect this globe. In many cases it is now too late; but Guatemala provided instruction for the future.

A magazine describes a new dishwasher as "portable and big enough to handle a service of eight. A wife of our acquaintance insists that is an ideal description of her husband."

FLYING ON INSTALLMENTS
A Houston, Tex., woman, Mrs. Louise Cochran, is flying round the world on the installment plan. She paid a quarter of the total sum down, the rest to be paid in 20 monthly installments. Thus, after her six-week tour is over, she will be convincingly reminded of it for another year and a half.

The railroads have long complained of the falling off of their passenger traffic. They might consider installment paying as a possible shot in the arm. Though this

'These Days'

HANOI

In the building of a universal state, it is sometimes necessary to give the appearance of retreat in order more skillfully to move forward. Such wars as World War I and World War II had to be fought in as much a hurry as possible because war exhausts not only the defeated but the victors. In building a universal state, however, time is not of the essence. The object is to accumulate states by infiltration and adhesion—a slower, less costly process.

The French accept their defeat in Indochina and are making the best of it by an apparent compromise. They are retreating from Hanoi and the Chinese Communists will apparently give up Laos and Cambodia. Laos and Cambodia can wait until the People's Republic of Indochina, supported by the Chinese Communists, moves, on its own, to unify the whole of Indochina into a federation of autonomous republics. Who shall gain the "voluntary" organization of such a federation—the will of the people? And who shall in 1957 or 1958 say that it is not the will of the people?

How easy it becomes to conquer countries when it is unnecessary to fight for them! Soviet Russia has not lost a man in the Korean or the Indochina wars. All that needs to be done is to create a new, high-sounding slogan, something that is essentially true in thought but utterly false in application, something like "Co-existence." Why, in truth, should not nations with different systems of life co-exist? They always have in the past. Therefore, use "Co-existence" as a method for conquest, just as the word, Democracy, worked so well at Yalta and Potsdam.

Tonkin and Annam in Indochina are now part of the Soviet Universal State, mastered by the Chinese Communists. These two countries have for centuries been under Chinese cultural and political influence. Sometimes, they were actually controlled by Chinese Emperors, long before the French moved into the Red River Valley.

Cambodia is altogether a different kind of a country. The people are of Khmer origin. The Khmers must have been a highly civilized people as the ruins of Angkor Wat indicate. These buildings of surprising beauty could only have been planned and built by men of a high state of culture. Some Siamese may also be of Khmer origin, although that country consists of many races. At any rate, Cambodia is closer to Siam culturally than it is to Annam or Tonkin where Chinese influences are greater. In fact, Siam once annexed Angkor but was induced to restore that city to Cambodia.

As the Red River is the main thoroughfare between Tonkin and China, so the Mekong River is the leading river of Cambodia, also flowing from China passing through Laos into Cambodia which it traverses to its delta on the South China Sea. That delta is one of the richest rice producing areas in the world. Its value to Communist China cannot be underestimated and therefore it must be assumed that its conquest will not be too long delayed.

But for this delta the Soviet Universal State can afford to wait rather than risk a fighting war which must involve Russia itself. If the French can be induced to withdraw from Indochina and if the United States can be discouraged from going in, the question of the successor-state arises. If a Communist Indochina government is recognized by France, does not that government become the successor state? Does not France, in effect, establish it as the successor state?

In 1954, that question will not arise, but in 1955 or in 1956 when other issues attract attention, will not the Communist government of Indochina, after it had been recognized by France, as it is de facto being so recognized now, claim its rights as the successor-state to a unified Indochina which must include Laos, bordering on Burma, and Cambodia on the Gulf of Siam?

So the new empire builds itself, step by step, patiently outwearing opposition, devising slogans which appeal to the Western eye and ear, to the lust for peace, a desire so great in our country and in Great Britain that it becomes a lure. Perhaps there is no other course but to give in until a place is found where a stand can be made effectively. Such a stand could not be made effectively in Indochina except by bombing the mainland of China.

That Body of Yours

EMPLOYMENT FOR DIABETICS

It seems difficult to realize that just thirty years ago, out of every thousand persons who had diabetes, 753 died of it within a fairly short time. Nowadays, thanks to insulin and other methods of treatment, no person with diabetes mellitus is considered lost, even very advanced cases. Everyone can be saved and his condition controlled.

How is he as an employment risk? The American Diabetes Association, a voluntary organization which has done great work for the diabetic, has emphasized its philosophy that the diabetic, because of his ability to perform a full day's work satisfactorily despite his disease, should not be classed with the physically handicapped. This organization with liaison with the C.I.O., the A.F.L. and Railroad Brotherhoods, among others, has drawn up some recommendations for both labor and management regarding the employment of the diabetic.

Mildly diabetic persons, in no need of insulin, present no problem. Of persons with severe diabetes, needing both insulin and diet control we will find two types: (1) the well-controlled, cooperative person, and (2) the uncooperative and poorly-controlled one. The latter, if hired, are liable to prejudice employers against all diabetics, for they are not only poor work risks because of their diabetes but are likely to be absentees because of complications from their disease.

Some of the standards suggested are these:

1. A diabetic seeking employment should present a note from his physician stating that he is controlled and undergoes periodic examinations.
2. Diabetics should work straight shifts (unbroken and nonrotating). If a rotating shift is absolutely necessary, they should avoid the midnight to eight in the morning schedule. This is the only concession in terms of hours that a well-controlled diabetic should ask.
3. Diabetics should carry cards or tags identifying their condition.
4. If the worker's schedule is such that he cannot visit his physician regularly, the plant physician, in cooperation with the diabetic's family physician, should perform periodic blood and urine examinations.
5. Each diabetic should have a complete annual examination.
6. Those taking insulin in large doses, where there is the possibility of coma (unconsciousness) occurring, should not be placed in positions where these attacks might endanger themselves or others.

If these employment standards are put into real use by employers and personnel directors, the diabetic applicant should be considered just as eligible for work as those without diabetes. His effective contribution to industry has already been demonstrated.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent
Washington, (NEA)—British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill gave no indication during his Washington visit as to when he would turn over the reins of government to his heir apparent, Foreign Minister Anthony Eden.

It is sad to relate, yet in all honesty it must be reported, that Sir Winston is not the leader he was in war time. His speech is less certain and his train of thought tends to wander. He is still the persistent statesman, however. He is still ambitious to end his career with a dramatic move, such as a conference with the Russian leaders to settle world peace.

It is against that background that the results of the Washington conference between President Eisenhower, Sir Winston, Mr. Eden and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles must be judged.

The final statement of general principles issued just before Sir Winston left the White House represents this last grasp for a historic utterance on the fade-out. It was President Eisenhower's idea to issue this statement. But to Sir Winston it may have represented an opportunity to shape the future more to the concrete and detailed decisions worked out in the earlier conference by Foreign Minister Eden and Secretary Dulles.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

July 9, 1934—Referee A. E. Members, after a review of assessments for 1930, reported that the New York city reservoir property in the town of Olive had been assessed fairly at $5,000,000.

Mrs. Metro Hausman died at her Murray street home.

Mrs. Charles H. Austin, of Hunter street, died.

No four men can confer for a weekend and change the forces of history. But they may alter it a little one way or another. They may give a new vitality to forces already at work, or offer an inspiration to lift people for greater effort for their own liberties.

The one part of the Eisenhower-Churchill statement which may have the greatest influence in this respect is the statement on colonialism. "We . . . will . . . strive . . . to secure the independence of all countries whose peoples desire and are capable of sustaining independent existence."

This deals with one of the most serious problems faced by the western nations. The Soviet government has long preyed on the aspirations of colonial people seeking independence. The hope held out by the Eisenhower-Churchill statement is that colonial people will not have to turn to communism to win their freedom.

This statement should give the United States more uninhibited leadership of the colonial areas. It shifts the formula on which the U. S. has had to act in support of colonial powers.

It also recognizes the changes which have been made in British colonial policy since the 19th century. Its aim is to hold the former colonial areas in the anti-Communist orbit.

The second great principle stated in the Eisenhower-Churchill declaration holds out hope for former sovereign states now under Soviet bondage. "We will not be a party to any arrangement or treaty which would prolong their unwilling subordination," it says.

This restates the repudiation of Communist domination of Poland, Czechoslovakia and even of Guatemala before its recent successful revolution. It holds out hope for the liberation of such areas, though it does not specify just how or when this is to be achieved.

Secretary Dulles has repeatedly said that the United States would never be a party to dividing the world into Communist and non-Communist spheres of influence. If the Communists felt they could draw such a line, they would no doubt like to do it.

But there is no assurance that the Communists would live up to any promises to maintain such a division. So now, here are Eisenhower and Churchill saying in effect that it is wrong to keep a billion of the world's peoples under Communist bondage.

It is on these same general principles that the British gave up their idea for a Locarno-type pact to guarantee the security of Southeast Asia or any other areas.

Last October, Prime Minister Churchill proposed a Locarno pact, to guarantee all countries against aggression from any source. The proposal was well received then. But when Mr. Eden proposed it more recently for Southeast Asia, the American reaction was bad.

It was explained to the British leaders in Washington that the United States would not agree to guarantee Communist domination anywhere. We could not go to war against South Korea if President Syngman Rhee reopened hostilities against North Korea. The same principle applied to East Germany or any other Communist satellite.

The United States, it was explained, might not go to war to change any of these existing situations. But it would also not agree to go to war to preserve them. To do so would be morally wrong.

Once the distinguished visitors understood these things, they agreed to abandon the Locarno pact idea.

This is why Secretary Dulles was able to accept the House amendment to the foreign aid bill, denying any U. S. assistance to countries that joined a Locarno-type pact for Southeast Asia. The issue was a dead duck, even before it passed the House.

Case Is First GOP Nominee to Stick Out His Neck on McCarthy Issue

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 9—The first Republican nominee for a seat in the U. S. Senate to stick his neck out on the McCarthy issue is Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, formerly a member of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Case says in a prepared statement that if elected he will not only vote against continuing the Wisconsin senator as chairman of the Senate Committee on Governmental Operations, but he will vote to ban him from being a member.

This sounds like a bold and courageous step because it could conceivably cost Mr. Case the election, but it really isn't as courageous as it sounds. For, if the indictment made by Mr. Case is in his judgment supportable, he logically should have advocated that Senator McCarthy be removed from the Senate altogether. If Mr. McCarthy isn't eligible to be a member of one Senate committee on account of the reasons given by Mr. Case, then he isn't eligible to sit in the Senate at all. This means that Mr. Case is saying to the people of Wisconsin that the man they elected in 1952 with full knowledge of his views and course of action in public office is to be debarred from serving them on important committees of the majority party as a consequence of the vote of the people of New Jersey, and any other states which concur in that procedure.

This is but another way of punishing a man for the views expressed by him in the performance of what he believes to be his duty to the people of his own state. Mr. Case is classed as a "liberal" but it is illiberal to attempt to remove a man from a Senate committee because he holds a viewpoint on public affairs different from the views of a majority of his colleagues in his party.

Mr. Case says that congressional investigations are sometimes worth while, but that Senator McCarthy should be punished because his "participation" in the work of the committee in question has produced a "distracting and divisive effect." This assumes that there must be conformity of thought—if not thought, control—in the United States Senate, and that any chairman or member of a committee, with a tendency to produce "distracting or divisive" effects will be threatened with removal from membership on any committee in which he has previously served. This is an odd proposal to be offered in a Republic which boasts about freedom of expression by the members of its national legislature.

"It is obvious," says Mr. Case, "that our government simply could not function if the executive departments and their personnel were subjected to constant and unjustified harassment and attack by congressional committees."

But all through the Truman administration that happened. The Democratic administration called the inquiry into tax-fixing and RFC scandals "harassment" and Mr. Truman called the Hiss inquiry a "red herring" which was "distracting attention from Republican 'errors.'" Mr. Case cannot give any assurance that if he helps to elect a Democrat to the United States Senate from New Jersey by causing thousands of Republicans to stay at home next autumn he will be restraining the Democrats, if they control the next Congress, from harassment of the executive departments. That would be their meat in the next two years in order to provide campaign food for the 1956 campaign, and anyone with the slightest experience with behavior of congressional committees in the last 40 years can testify that there have been many members of both Houses who have ridden roughshod over executive department officials and employees, though Mr. Case says "until recently this was not a matter of general concern." Martin Dies of Texas, who headed up the House Un-American Activities Committee twenty years ago, and every chairman since has been criticized for efforts to get deceitful persons to tell the truth to their own government and to help it get rid of subversive influence. Mr. Case admits that there is a function, however, for the congressional committees. He says:

"Yet, where there is reason to suspect the existence of serious dereliction which cannot be or is not being, remedied by the executive branch itself, the most searching scrutiny by Congress is not only proper but mandatory. On this point the lesson of the Hiss case will not be forgotten."

But the grant of an honorable discharge to an officer in the army who was declared by an undercover agent of the New York police department to be a Communist and who refused to tell the army or the Senate committee whether or not the accusation was true is an instance of dereliction of duty in the executive branch which initiated the whole McCarthy-Stevens controversy.

Mr. Case's statement is not clear as to whether he will vote in a Republican caucus or in the Senate itself to ban Senator McCarthy. If it is the latter situation, Mr. Case could be in the position of casting a decisive vote which together with the Democratic votes would elect a Democrat to be chairman of an all-important committee. So the real issue is whether Mr. Case intends to vote for and abide by the Republican party's decision or line up with the Democratic party, even though he seeks election as a Republican nominee.

If the New Jersey senatorial nominee had consulted the leaders of his party here they would never have advised him to issue the statement he did. As it is, there is pessimism now among Republicans in Congress about the outlook for the election of a Republican senator in New Jersey this autumn. For there are many thousands of Democrats who came over to the Republican party on the anti-Communist issue in 1952, especially in Hudson county, who will be wondering whether they should stay home, or vote Democratic next time.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, July 8—When I detected in Frank Willard's ribald comic strip "Moon Mullins" a proud innuendo that he was going back to his old home town of Anna, Ills., as a triumphant prodigal for civic ceremonies and tributes, I bethought me of one of these conversation evenings which are the bliss of my estate.

Mr. Willard was the first person, to my best knowledge, to believe that ever thought of dropping a salt-cellar into a napkin as a gesture of diplomatic force. By brandishing same at persons unknown in a speakeasy under a viaduct in Chicago, Mr. Willard persuaded our way out of a crisis concerning who had said what about who. I am not the one to say that Theodore Roosevelt's big stick was more to be respected, Frank Willard, known as "Doc" because in his gaudy days he solemnly advised gin as a prophylaxis against the common cold and other vulgar ills of that epoch, never had to wield his salt-cellar. He just waved that napkin with that three-ounce nugget in the pouch and they even called a cab for us outside and sped us on our way.

That, however, was not the evening when I asked Doc how he had managed to become a comic-strip artist.

That was another evening. That evening, I said, I had made the same false step myself in my teens but, being a worse artist and incapable of improvement because an arbitrary savant at the Art Institute had insisted that we draw people from the feet up, because, who ever heard of building a house from the roof down, had chucked it to hell and gone.

Mr. Willard said he had been born in Anna, Ills. "I was born in Anna, Ills." Mr. Willard prepared another black cow of sarsaparilla and vanilla ice cream. His little boy, Kayo, who somewhat after flew a B-29 in the Pacific, was snoozing in a dresser drawer.

"Anna, Ills. I was living with my aunt Sadie and my uncle. They were fine American types. Uncle Watt had answered the bugles and marched with the colors in 1898. He came back impaired in health and was receiving from a grateful republic a modest reparation of about $75 a month. We were not rich, as riches go, but neither ill-housed, ill-fed, ill-clothed."

"You are not getting mileage or space-rates for this recital," I said.

"You are hearing a saga," Mr. Willard said.

"I used to take subscriptions for the Youth's Companion. The revenues from these honest efforts kept me in chewing tobacco and catfish tackle and life extended before me as a gentle, undulating career, until one night, by kerosene lamp in the parlor, I drew me a pitcher of Colonel Custer in an advertisement in that admirable bladder. The ad said, 'The boy who sends in the best free-hand copy of this pitcher will get absolutely free of cost and/or expenses one Daisy repeating air rifle and one oz. of BB shot.'"

The Mosque of Shah Wilayat in Agra, India—46 feet by 19 feet, with its arched three entrances was built by Emperor Babar in 1530. When Sher Shah came to Agra (1700) he ordered his camels stabled in the mosque. The mosque was saved from desecration when it suddenly sank into the ground, leaving only 5 feet 8 inches of the main entrance arch exposed, the other 2/3 of its height being underground. It was too low to allow camels to enter. The timely subsidence of the structure is regarded as a miracle by Moslems.

PITCHING HORSESHOESBy BILLY ROSE*THE HEAD IS QUICKER THAN THE EYE

A few weeks back I wrote an enthusiastic piece about a shimmering hunk of theatre called "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial" which was produced by Paul Gregory at a cost of about $20,000.

Today I'd like to file a not so enthusiastic report about the movie called "The Caine Mutiny" which was produced by Stanley Kramer for Columbia Pictures at a cost of about $2,000,000. Let me say right off that it is not my purpose to pan the flicker version of the Herman Wouk novel. It's big, slick, expert and a cinch to give a good account of itself at the box office. It tells its story, however, in primer-book fashion, as though the producer were afraid some 10-year-old in the balcony might misunderstand the plot. The script employs the old flagstone-laying technique, each slab neatly following the one before, and each slab, though nicely trimmed, tending to be as flat as the one before.

By contrast, "Caine," the play, wastes no time on a stone-by-stone build-up. It focuses on the one piece of dramatic dynamite the story has to offer—the trial scene, and the audience is briefed on the incidents leading up to the mutiny in a series of quick takes. As a result, the theatre version more than makes up in intensity for what it lacks in range, and comes through as a throat-grabbing chunk of life. The bookkeeperish movie version, despite all its spectacle, remains a movie.

Scenery-wise, the stage "Caine" consists of a few tables, benches and chairs. The spectator is asked to make up his own scenery, and the result is that he becomes his own stage designer and is deeply moved by the settings of his own creation. The typhoon which whips through his head is a real one, while the Hollywood version, though skillfully photographed, is a comparative phony.

The acting in the movie is competent and, at times, better than competent. But since the narrative is intent on covering a lot of terrain instead of concentrating on one emotional site, the performances are merely competent. Humphrey Bogart is fine as Captain Queeg—if you haven't witnessed the anguish of Lloyd Nolan in the play. Jose Ferrer is impressive as Lieutenant Greenwald—if you have seen Henry Fonda. Edward Dmytryk's direction is smooth and professional, until you start comparing it with Charles Laughton's. As for the flaccid love story which chews up a lot of footage in the movie, it's pleasant enough—that is, if you haven't seen "Caine" without this bit of irrelevant fluff.

What it comes down to, I guess, is that the literalness of Hollywood is no match, in terms of impact, for the spectators' imagination, once it's artfully prodded. For that reason, when it comes to telling a story without trimmings or trumperies, the legitimate theatre is still the leave-em-cheering champ. Statistics, I think, bear me out. In recent years, the movies have lost a good part of their audience to radio and television. On Broadway, however, hit shows these days run twice as long as they did a couple of decades ago.

It all seems to add up to a show-business truism which was old when Aristophanes was wowing 'em on a bare stage in Athens: The hint is mightier than the blueprint.

DURANTE RIDES AGAIN
My phone rang a couple of weeks ago and a sandpaper-voiced fellow asked if this was Billy Rose, "da enterpenour an' boole-vaerdeiro."

"Don't tell me," I said, "let me guess. Frank Costello's in jail and B. S. Pulley's on the road. So this must be Jimmy Durante."

"Nun, udda," said my old friend. "Drop everyt'in, micer-trow. I'm comin' ova ta take ya fer a ride in my new buggy. 'When'd you buy the car?' I asked."

"Yesterday," said Jimmy. "I went into a garage to phone an' it would'a looked nice ta leave wit'out buyin' sometin'."

Twenty minutes later, Durante screamed up to the Ziegfeld in a crimson sports car which was as low as it could get without going underground. His initials on the door were in Old English script and the motor backfired with an Oxford accent. "What model is it?" I asked. "Dis car's more dan a model," said Jimmy. "It's a shinin' example."

I shoehorned myself into the leather bucket seat and turned to examine Durante. He was wearing a blue pork-pie hat and slacks the color of an orange popsicle. The overall effect was that of an Arizona sunset with pockets.

There were 20 gadgets on the mahogany dashboard and Jimmy pushed them all at once. We leapt across the Queensboro Bridge and onto Grand Central Parkway. A few miles later, handling the wheel like a personal enemy, Durante swerved off on a side road. After 10 minutes of lurching past rows of haystacks, I began to feel the way my passport picture looks. Arent those billboards coming at us awfully fast?" I said. "I gotta hurry," said Jimmy. "If I don't get to da motor vehicle office in Babylon by five, I won't git my license."

"How fast are we going?" I asked. "Two, maybe tree hunnert haystacks a hour," said Durante. "There a car coming toward us," I said a minute later. "Why don't you give it half the road?" "I'm willing to co-operate," said Jimmy, "but I don't know what half it wants." At this point the road was zig-zagging so much that it looked like a roller coaster laid on its side.

"Take it easy," I pleaded. "My head's coming off."

"Relax," said Durante. "When dey sol me da car, dey guaranteed to replace anyt'ing broke or missin'."

A few miles from Babylon I heard the beautiful music of a police siren. Jimmy slip-slid to a halt and a motorcycle cop walked over and stared at us.

"I suppose you know why I stopped you," he said.

"Lemme guess," said Durante. "You wuz lonely."

"Funny guy, huh?" said the officer. "Do you know you were doing 70 miles an hour?"

"Ta tell ya da trut," said Jimmy, "my brakes ain't workin', an' I was hurryin' ta git home before I hadda accident. I didn't realize I was drivin' too fast."

"You weren't," said the cop. "You were flyin' too low. What's your name?"

"J. Theophrastus Umper-dinct," said Durante.

"That's an old gag," snarled the officer. "I'm supposed to be too lazy to spell it and let you go."

He took a leather-bound book out of his pocket and handed it to Jimmy. "Write the name yourself," he said.

Trapped, the Snozz put down his square monicker. The cop looked at it, smiled and tucked the book back in his pocket.

"Are you givin' me a ticket," asked Jimmy, "or sellin' me one?"

"That wasn't a ticket you signed, Mr. Durante," said the officer. "It was an autograph book. Wait 'til I tell my wife about this. She thinks you're a genius."

"Tell da little woman I speak wella her too," said Jimmy.

"Just one thing more, Mr. Durante," said the cop. "Who is the Mrs. Calabash you always say good-night to on your television show?"

Jimmy stepped on the gas.

Merchants Defeat Nadler Motors, 5-2, for First League Victory

DuBois' 6-Hitter, Olen, Oakley's Slugging Excel

Jones Dairy Meets Doblers on Tuesday

Olive Merchants cracked the victory column for the first time in the City League yesterday, whipping Nadler Motors, 5-2, to snap a five-game losing streak.

A new face in twilight league pitching circles, Bob DuBois, checked the Motormen with six scattered hits and was in clover after the Merchants assaulted Randy Siegel for four runs in the first inning.

The loss was the fourth in seven games for Nadlers. DuBois didn't issue a pass and didn't walk a batter according to the official report. Siegel balanced one walk with one strikeout.

A couple of Bills—Olen and Oakley—did heavy duty for the Merchants, the former with a double and two singles and Oakley with a pair of two baggers and a solo and two RBIs. Don Lyons rapped a triple for the Nadlers.

Four In First

The Merchants greeted Siegel quickly and with considerable enthusiasm in the first inning. Crosswell singled to left and stole second. Davis fanned and Jackson was safe when Lyons threw wild to first on his grounder. Bill Olen's first single scored Crosswell. Shults delivered Jackson and Oakley's singleton chased Olen and Wilkins across with the third and fourth runs of the inning.

Siegel was effective after that, yielding only another tally in the sixth when Olen's third hit and steal set the stage for Oakley's RBI single.

DuBois lost his shutout in the fourth on three singles by Ward Dunham, Bob Beaumont and Bob Fay.

In a last desperate bid in the top of the seventh, Nadlers picked up one run when Lyons forced Bob Fay at second, moved to third on an infield out and scored on DuBois' balk.

Undefeated Jones Dairy (4-0) meets Doblers in Tuesday's attraction.

Poor Dodgers Are Dead, Bring on Those Indians

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Collapse or slump? Take your pick. It depends on whether you're anti or pro Brooklyn.

But even their staunchest boosters admit the once high and mighty Dodgers are at their lowest point since their 1951 debacle.

Not since they "blew" the flag in 1951 after leading by 13 games in mid-August have the Dodger fortunes been at such a low ebb. Within a space of 10 days the apparently tired and dreary Brooks fell from their lofty perch atop the National League to a poor runner-up spot, 6½ lengths off the pace.

Old age, injuries, weak hitting, spotty pitching, sloppy fielding and bludgeoning Giant bats all contributed to the sharp decline. Keenly disappointed over his team's wretched play, Manager Walter Alston ordered the entire club out for a special 2½ hour practice session—after yesterday's 11-2 pasting from the Giants.

Team Dissension (?)

Whether the Dodgers can right themselves is anybody's guess. Only once before in the last six years have the Brooks been so badly off. That was in 1950 when they trailed the Philadelphia Phillies by eight games in September. They came on with a rush then, only to lose a chance for a tie on the final day of the season.

The outlook is gloomier now. This time they must contend with a "hot" Giant team instead of a weary Philadelphia club staggering to the finish line. To add to their confusion, the Dodgers, meek as lambs against Giant pitching, reportedly are battling among themselves.

After Brooklyn had dropped its sixth straight to the Giants yesterday, pitchers Russ Meyer and Don Newcombe reportedly almost came to blows in the clubhouse and had to be separated by teammates. Both players denied it.

Willie After Mark

Newcombe acknowledged he questioned Meyer about a pitch Russ threw which hit Monte Irvin in the seventh inning. Irvin, who barely had escaped being hit with the previous pitch, became angered at what he called a deliberate punter and called Meyer uncomplimentary names. Fast work by the umpires avoided further complications.

Once again, it was Willie Mays who led the "Giant" charge. The spectacular centerfielder smashed his 29th and 30th home ers to drive in five runs. It gave him four homers in the three-game set and nine in 12 games against Brooklyn pitching this season. The National League record for most homers against one club is 12 by Ralph Kiner against the Dodgers in 1950. Ruben Gomez, the Puerto Rican screwball pitcher, limited the Dodgers to seven hits and fanned eight for his eighth triumph.

Only four other games were played yesterday.

Tribe Widens Lead

Cleveland's American League leading Indians boosted their margin over the idle New York Yankees to four games, defeating Baltimore 4-1 behind the seven-hit hurling of Bob Feller. The former fireballer fanned six to raise his lifetime strikeout total to 2,511, third to Walter Johnson and Cy Young among all-time strikeout leaders. Homers by Jim Hegan and Wally Westlake were all the runs Feller needed.

Detroit's Steve Gromek dropped Chicago seven games behind Cleveland, shutting out the White Sox 2-0 on seven hits. The Tigers' Ray Boone drove in one run with a double and scored the other.

The St. Louis Cardinals bunched four singles in the second inning to defeat Cincinnati 2-1 and gain a tie with the Redlegs for fifth place as Harvey Haddix chalked up his 13th triumph. Red Schoendienst, card second baseman, extended his hitting streak through 27 consecutive games.

Randy Jackson walloped his 17th home run early in the game, then singled in the 14th inning to drive in the run that gave the Chicago Cubs a 9-8 victory over Milwaukee.

Joey Hoffman turned relief pitcher with excellent results yesterday, as the V.F.W. clobbered the Vols, 13 to 4, in the Fraternal Youth League.

Hoffman, a first baseman by trade, relieved starter Bob Coughlin in the third inning and allowed only one run the rest of the way.

Meanwhile, the Vets collected 11 hits off Ronnie Secreto and Billy Short including a grand slam homer by Charlie Bishop in the sixth inning when nine runs clattered across the plate.

The Vols led 4-0 until the fifth when Short's defense, especially the outfield, collapsed and the Vets tied it at 4-4. Then came the debacle.

Gets Three Hits

Hoffman also set the pace in the cleanup spot for the VFW with "3 for 3," a trio of singles. John Tomassieki rapped a single and double and Ronnie Ashdown had two solos. Bishop picked up a single in addition to his homer. Jack Reinhardt had two of the eight Vol singles.

Goodwin and Sweeney Are Top Choices in State Golf

Elmsford, July 9 (P)—Tommy Goodwin of Rye, N. Y., and Bob Sweeney of Sands Point, N. Y., still stood out as the favorites as the 32nd annual New York State Amateur Golf championship entered the fourth round today.

Two 18-hole rounds were scheduled for today with the semi-finals tomorrow and the 36-hole final on Sunday.

Goodwin, four-time winner of the state crown and the defending champion, scored two easy victories yesterday. First he trimmed Jim Brock of Utica, N. Y., 5 and 4 and then he trounced Tom Gallagher of Groton 7 and 6.

Today he meets Leonard Osterlander of Poughkeepsie, who defeated Walter Peck of New Rochelle and Mid O'Hare of Syracuse, both 1-up.

Sweeney, winner of the British Amateur in 1937, had a pair of easy wins. In the morning he stopped Gerry Sullivan of Binghamton, N. Y., 5 and 4 and in the afternoon he turned back John Snyder of Troy, N. Y., 3 and 2.

Sweeney's fourth round opponent is Tony Langan of Syracuse, who stopped Earl Bowes, New Hartford, N. Y., 5 and 4 and George Ahern of Troy 1-up in 19-hole.

The major upset was Willie Turnesa, the 1938 state champion and former winner of the United States and British Amateur championships. Bruce Koch, 25-year-old sports writer for the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, defeated Turnesa 3 and 2 in the third round.

Stanley Harte of Inwood, N. Y., also scored a third-round upset. The 1941 semi-finalist turned back Paul Kelly, Westchester Amateur champion 1-up in 19-hole.

Dr. Rocco Impagliaia of Auburn, who scored easy victories over Ralph Yando, Poughkeepsie, 4 and 3, and Robert Graves, Rye, 2-up, will meet Koch in today's fourth round.

Two youngsters still in running. Seventeen-year-old Ronnie Terpak of Endicott, who downed rivals twice his age. He stopped Tom Pelnik of Utica, 2-up, and Joe Biasone of Syracuse 2 and 1.

Terry Thomas, 18-year-old Duke University sophomore, of Pittsford, N. Y., defeated Harry Meola of Middletown, N. Y., and Mike Mural of Syracuse, each by 3 and 1.

Dublin, Ireland — Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., reached the finals of the women's singles in the Irish lawn championships by defeating June Fitzpatrick of Dublin 6-1, 6-0.

Indianapolis — Fifth-seeded Bernard Barten of Dallas, Tex., defeated second-seeded Straight Clark of Philadelphia in the quarter-finals of the Western championships 7-5, 6-3.

Birmingham, England — Wimbledon champion Jaroslav Drobny defeated Australia's Roy Emerson 6-4, 6-1 to reach the semi-finals of the Midland Counties tournament.

Raise Initial $55,000 to Keep A's in Philly

Philadelphia, July 9 (P)—A drive among Philadelphia business leaders to whip up support for the Philadelphia Athletics was underway today with two pledges totaling $55,000 worth of tickets.

Mayor Joseph S. Clark, Jr. called some 90 business and civic leaders into his City Hall office yesterday and dumped the problem of keeping the Athletics' franchise here squarely in their laps.

Clark said the city cannot put up any money to keep the ball club in the city where it began its once illustrious history 54 seasons ago.

But, while squelching the possibility that American League Baseball might become city-subsidized, Clark pledged the "full strength of (the city's) public relations" behind the movement to prevent the financially distressed team from passing on to one of several baseball hungry cities elsewhere in the country.

It was estimated that some 420,000 paid admissions are needed in the 32 home playing dates (39 games) remaining on the Athletics schedule in order for the club to break even financially.

Yesterday's pledges — $50,000 of which came from the president of a drug store chain — represent about one-eighth of the total needed.

Man Says Woman Bothered Him, So He Got Rid of Her

New York, July 9 (AP)—Vincent Sagistano, 22, an ex-convict, walked into the Brooklyn district attorney's office yesterday and confessed the killing of Mrs. Arlene Lucarella, 23.

Mrs. Lucarella, mother of five small children and estranged from her third husband, was wounded fatally with three pistol shots on a sidewalk near her home early yesterday.
Police sent out an alarm for Sagistano—known as "Little Joe"—after they received information that he and Mrs. Lucarella had coffee together at a diner at 5 a. m. They had been going out together recently.
Sagistano was quoted by the district attorney's office as saying the woman "became a nuisance" and often phoned him in the middle of the night, and "it was the only way to get rid of her."

Sagistano turned over a .32 caliber pistol to a detective in the office.

Boy, 6, Is Beaten

New York, July 9 (AP)—A 6-year-old boy, playing "cowboys and Indians" with a 14-year-old youngster, was tied and severely beaten last night in the basement of a Bronx apartment house. Police quoted the older boy, an honor student, as saying he had an "urge" to hurt someone. The victim, George Sperber, suffered severe cuts on the face and head inflicted with a metal-tipped mop handle. His condition at a hospital was listed as fair.

Wage Boost Agreed

New York, July 9 (AP)—The Transit Authority and the CIO Transport Workers Union (TWU) have agreed on a wage boost of 6½ to 11 cents an hour for 37,000 TWU workers on city-owned subway, surface and elevated lines. Accepting for the union yesterday was Michael J. Quill, TWU president.

Byrne Monuments Praised in June Issue of Magazine

An article and illustrations of James P. Byrne Monuments, located on the Onteora Trail at the entrance to the Thruway, appears in the June issue of the national trade magazine of the monument industry, Art in Stone.

The local concern, selected as representative of good planning, was cited as an outstanding example of a modern retail monument establishment.

Son of Founder

The article points out that James P. Byrne, owner, is the son of James P. Byrne, founder of Byrne Brothers, which firm was dissolved in 1952. The article continues:
"A graduate of the original Memorial Art Course established at Columbia University, Mr. Byrne has devoted his entire life to the monument business. For 12 years, following his father's death in 1939, he managed the business of Byrne Brothers. He served in the Pacific theatre during World War 2 and holds the rank of lieutenant colonel. Married and the father of four charming daughters, Mr. Byrne is past president of the Rotary Club of Kingston; past vice-president and director of Knights of Columbus, Elks and American Legion."

Plant Described

"Mr. Byrne says of his new building: 'The exterior and show room wall panels are of native Ulster county bluestone. Show room and office interior are plywood which we sand-blasted before staining light green to obtain the best effect of the grain. The shop area includes the three bays to the left and the area of two bays back of the showroom. The building is entirely surrounded with steel sash and glass plus a skylight running half the length on the opposite roof side. An overhead door at the left end provides for truck delivery to a 30-foot overhead door at the left and provides access for truck delivery to a 30-foot overhead track with electric hoist. The work area is about 900 square feet. The main building and supply room, has an overall length of 80 feet. A feature of the showroom, which has a green concrete floor, is that the memorials, stone walls and floor can be hosed down weekly. A customer's conference room and a drafting room are also included. The outdoor display area has a Tennessee marble walk. Our location is on the Onteora Trail, but a few blocks from the entrance and exit of the new Buffalo-New York express highway.'"

'Matinee' Thief Caught

New York, July 9 (AP)—A "matinee" burglar who admits to "about a hundred" Bronx apartment burglaries since late February—all in "modern yellow-brick buildings on or near the Grand Concourse"—was arrested late yesterday. Arthur Manes, 29, of 365 East 193rd street, the Bronx, was booked on charges of burglary and grand larceny after unwittingly lining up at a pawn shop counter with two detectives who had been looking for him since early June. The detectives, Robert and George Kappes, were alerting Unger's Loan Shop, 506 East Tremont avenue, to watch for loot from a recent robbery. Manes, a camera enthusiast, entered the store to inquire whether it was there he had pawned a camera he wanted back.

I just want to give you the usual warning against imposters who may represent themselves as Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation employees.

All of my co-workers, our Commercial Representatives, Service Men and Meter Inspectors carry official identification cards. They are O.K.

If, however, you are not fully convinced that the person who seeks admittance is one of my co-workers, don't admit him until you have called the nearest Central Hudson office to make sure.

Shea Sees Need For Ulster County Psychiatric Units

Ulster county has a need for psychiatric teams such as may be established under a new state law offering state aid for community mental health services, Dr. Edward F. Shea, chairman of the Mental Health Committee of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, told members of the Kiwanis Club at a luncheon meeting Thursday at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Under the new law, the state reimburses a community or county 50 per cent of the cost of the services. First step in complying with the provisions of the act, Dr. Shea explained, is for the Board of Supervisors to appoint a nine-member mental health board.

A psychiatric team, he explained, usually consists of a psychiatrist, psychologist and psychiatric social worker. There should be one team for each 50,000 residents, he said. Ulster county's population is about 92,000. Main purpose of the team would be to seek out and treat the mild "incipient" cases of mental illness before they become serious enough to require hospitalization. Such mental illnesses cause not only problems in schools, but also lost time in business and industry, he pointed out.
